WNA joins effort to block gag order

The Wisconsin Newspaper Association has joined a coalition of more than 50 news organizations seeking to intervene in a Vilas County court case where prosecutors have asked for a ban on statements to the media. The motion to intervene was expected to be filed Monday by attorney Steven P. Mandell of the Chicago law firm Mandell Menkes.

The case, State of Wisconsin v. Elason, involves brothers Dave and Brian Elason, who are charged with 10 felony counts of securities fraud after “failing to disclose the precarious condition of their business that sold investments in commercial and residential properties in 2009,” according to the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel.

Attorneys representing the Elasons released a press release on Feb. 29 commenting on the charges a few days after the criminal complaint had been filed. On March 8, the state moved to prohibit any public statements by the defendants or the prosecution about the case, including making statements to the media.

“The proposed gag order sought is an unconstitutional prior restraint on the freedom of speech and the freedoms of the press under the First Amendment,” Mandell wrote in the motion to intervene. “Specifically, the proposed order is extremely overbroad and restrains speech explicitly permitted by Wisconsin Supreme Court Rule 20.36. Further, other reasonable alternatives available to this Court would have a lesser impact on First Amendment rights if there were a need to mitigate any alleged prejudicial pretrial publicity.”

The WNA was joined on the motion by the Journal Sentinel, Lakeland Printing, Quincy Media, Gannett, the Wisconsin Media, Gannett, the Wisconsin Broadcasting Association, Gray Television and RockFleet Broadcasting/Northland Television.

The Elasons are scheduled for their initial court appearances on April 13.

Memorial Day special section will be available to members

State newspapers credited for finding more than 450 photos

For the past two years, the WNA and its members have joined the effort to find all of the photos of Wisconsin Vietnam Veterans who are listed on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. WNA members have been credited with finding more than 450 of the photos and were integral in the project’s completion just before Memorial Day.

For the first time, a state press association—in collaboration with the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund and the Dodge County Pioneer—is making the photos found through this effort available to members for publication via a memorial insert, which includes stories highlighting the efforts to find the images and space made available for advertising opportunities.

The draft publication is now available so that newspapers will have enough time to sell sponsorship ads and plan for publication. To view a draft version of the project, visit http://tinyurl.com/WisconsinFaces.

In the coming weeks, the WNA will make a final Faces Never Forgotten tribute section available to all members for publication on Memorial Day.

Q&A

Q: What will be made available?

A: The Dodge County Pioneer designed a 36-page model tab that will be available in its entirety in Quark and PDF file formats. Each WNA member newspaper is encouraged to personalize the cover and some of the copy. Members will also have access to the stories and photos in the model tab. Photos of soldiers can be accessed online—with an option to sort by city or county—through the VVMF’s virtual Wall of Faces.

Q: How can I find out more about the project?

Hannah-Jones to headline ethics conference

Theme focuses on ‘Race, Ethnicity and Journalism Ethics’

Award-winning New York Times Magazine journalist Nikole Hannah-Jones will deliver the keynote address to open the 2016 Center for Journalism Ethics conference at the University of Wisconsin-Madison on April 29.

This year’s conference focuses on “Race, Ethnicity and Journalism Ethics.” The event runs from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Union South on the UW-Madison campus. The keynote will begin at 9 a.m. Registration is now open at the center’s website. The cost for early bird registrants is $20, including a buffet lunch, but increases to $25 April 9. Registration is free for all students and UW-Madison faculty and staff.

Hannah-Jones has reported on the history of racism and inequality and its legacy in modern policies that have maintained racial injustice. She has written personal reports on the black experience in America to offer a case for greater equality.

Earlier this spring, she earned a George Polk Award for radio reporting for “The Problem We All Live With,” broadcast on “This American Life.” For that story, she investigated the Normandy School District in Missouri, from which Michael Brown had graduated just before he was killed in nearby Ferguson. The two-part series examined school integration and the impact of resistance by largely white communities.

Building on the keynote, four panels will address the ethical challenges journalists face when dealing directly and indirectly with issues of race and ethnicity. Session topics will include:

- Journalistic representations of race, language, imagery, sources and their effects
- Journalism ethics and race in education coverage
- Journalism ethics and race in criminal justice coverage
- Solutions to the issues

The Mequon-Thiensville School Board unanimously adopted a policy recently that requires individuals who make large or complicated public records requests to pay for them. Under the new policy, requests that involve staff or legal time and copying costs of more than $50 will result in a bill. In the past, the district has just complied with requests at no charge. The new policy complies with state law.

Board member Stephanie Clark said the policy was considered after she said the district started seeing "an inordinate amount" of record requests.

In its own public records request, the News Graphic in Cedarburg sought details of the inquiries that the district received. Data released by the school district indicates that requests received from Sept. 1, 2015, to March 4 resulted in legal costs of about $21,683, estimated staff labor costs of $699 and 16,855 pages generated.

Among Friends

Cambridge News and Deerdield Independent

The Cambridge News/Deerfield Independent welcomes its new managing editor, Nicole Poley, to the office staff in Cambridge. Poley has worked for Hometown News Limited Partnership for the past year as a reporter in Cottage Grove, covering events from local politics, sports and community interest for the Herald-Independent.

She is a graduate of St. Norbert College in De Pere, Wis., where she studied English, communications and music. During her college career, Poley worked for the student-run newspaper, the St. Norbert Times, and led the staff as editor-in-chief her senior year. She also interned at Fox Cities Magazine during her final year at St. Norbert.

Poley, a Monona native, moved to Cambridge with her husband Adam about a year ago.

Oregon Observer

The Oregon Observer launched a new website last week. While it’s still at ConnectOregonWI.com, the new site should offer an improved web experience for online readers.

The change comes as all of Unified Newspaper Group’s papers aim to foster a web-first mentality, to bring news to readers faster. The new site will help improve digital-first practices, and includes options to feature or highlight certain topics.

The Observer last changed its website in March 2013.

Unified Newspaper Group, Verona

Tom Alesia has joined Unified Newspaper Group as a reporter. A veteran journalist and non-profit administrator, Alesia worked as an editor at Hometown News Limited Partnership for the last 15 months in McFarland. Before that, he spent five years as an administrator with a north-side Madison non-profit group.

His career includes nearly 16 years as a features writer and arts/entertainment editor at the Wisconsin State Journal and The Capital Times. An Indiana University grad and Chicago area native, he lives in Madison with his wife, teen son and two "wonderfully noisy dogs."

Lab Department action would increase salary threshold 13% FALS CHURCH, VA—The National Newspaper Association on March 28 applauded the recent introduction of the Protecting Workplace Advancement and Opportunity Act (S. 2707 and H.R. 4773). The legislation would require the Department of Labor to study the impact on small businesses, nonprofits and public employers of the agency’s plan to increase the minimum salary level for employees to qualify as exempt from overtime pay. It would also delay publication of the Labor Department’s expected regulation.

Under the Labor Department’s proposal, the minimum salary level would increase 1.3 percent, from $23,660 to $25,140 per year. In the 78 years since the overtime rules were established, the agency has set the threshold at the 10th percentile of median salaries in the U.S.; its proposal would establish the 40th percentile of median salaries in the U.S. as the new demarcation point for exempt employees. NNA believes an update to the salary threshold is warranted, but the size of the increase is imprudent because businesses generally cannot make such dramatic adjustments in such a short period of time. The new rule would hurt the operational and economic sustainability of NNA’s community newspapers, most of which are family businesses. Many operate in rural areas where costs of living are lower than in urban areas.

“The Labor Department’s proposal is a one-size-fits-all solution that mandates the same minimum salary level regardless of where it is being enforced,” said NNA President Chip Hutchison, publisher of The Times Leader in Princeton, Ky. “The new threshold may make sense in New York City or Washington, but it will hurt businesses and employees in the small towns and rural areas where most community newspapers are published.”

According to a recent survey conducted by NNA, if the new rule takes effect, more than 30 percent of community newspapers would be forced to eliminate staff positions, 3.1 percent would reduce news coverage, and 42 percent would hire more part-time workers to replace full-time positions. More than 83 percent believe the requirement will be a “huge” or very significant problem for their business. Rather than the increased wages the Labor Department seeks, the result in small communities will be a degradation in the quality and quantity of local news reported by community newspapers.

Hutchison also noted the new rule would require many community newspaper editors to begin punching a clock. “The news does not conform to a 9-5 schedule,” he said. “The shift to non-exempt status will deprive many journalists of the flexibility they need to do their jobs and will eliminate career growth opportunities for ambitious employees.”

Help Wanted

INTERN - Spend the summer in Door County and gain writing experience for your portfolio. The Washington Island Observer is offering a unique opportunity for the right candidate to enjoy the summer on beautiful Washington Island at the tip of the Door Peninsula. The Observer is seeking a summer intern with a journalism or writing background to write articles about community, events, meetings, and other issues as they arise. The right candidate will be an independent self-starter who is comfortable interacting with residents and visitors, meeting weekly deadlines, and uncovering additional opportunities to ensure timely and accurate news coverage. The Observer is published 30 times a year (every-other week in winter, every week in summer), with each issue distributed to more than 1,000 readers on the island and around the U.S. This is a new position for the paper, but it is expected that the intern will work approximately 15-20 hours per week. Benefits are negotiable and may include lodging on the island during the intern’s term of employment (June through August, with flexible start and end dates) and a ferry stipend.

REPORTER - Veteran journalist looking for new challenges, recent December graduate or anticipating spring graduation, we want to talk to you. An immediate opening has occurred at our award-winning newspaper most recently recognized for investigative and team in-depth reporting—and we want to fill it quickly. The highest priorities on our to-do-list for any employee, enthusiasm and a positive, competitive drive for excellence. We offer the opportunity to join an experienced, solid team in a news-rich environment, along with outstanding quality of life near Chicago, Milwaukee, Madison and Rockford. Competitive pay and benefits equal opportunity employer. Respond with cover letter, resume, clips, references and salary history to Editor Bill Barth, Beloit Daily News, P.O. OPINION PAGE EDITOR - The Gazette in Janesville, Wis., is looking for its next Opinion page editor to continue the sections award-winning tradition as part of an award-winning newspaper. We are a 20,000-circulation, family-owned publication named one of the best daily in Wisconsin. Our newspaper is a good mix of fresh, young journalists and keen, wise writers. We’re looking for a smart, well-organized, hard-working and sparkling writer who can turn out clear, compelling editorials for almost every edition. We value clean, open government and strongly support pages that cheer the community for doing things right and chastise local government for getting it wrong. The focus of our Opinion pages is local with occasional forays into state issues. Our Mosaic, Local Bliss and Reader Forum pages are generally lean conservative in politics but allow much freedom in day-to-day editorials. Our editorial board meets monthly and for candidate endorsements. We subscribe to a set of editorial principles, but the Opinion page editor enjoys great freedom in working with the editor to craft each day’s editorial. We also look for someone with three to five years of journalism experience, preferably in newspapers, and a degree in journalism or a related field. Most importantly, we seek someone who can engage readers by editorializing about issues in the communities we serve. Send cover letter, resume and writing samples to: The Janesville Gazette, Attn: Human Resources, P.O. Box 501, Janesville, WI 53547-5001. humanresources@janesvillegazette.com [0419]

REPORTER - The River Valley Media Group has an opening for a full-time community journalist. This position would be based out of La Crosse and would cover everything from features and profiles, government meetings and breaking news. Stories and photos would be published online and in several of our newspapers, including the Houston County News in La Crescent, Minn., the Coulee News in West Salem, the Dancing Borders Courier-Life, the La Crosse Tribune and the Winona Daily News in Winona, Minn. The ideal candidate should be comfortable writing a feature story, covering a meeting, covering high school sports, taking photographs, interviewing community members and dignitaries. Experience with digital-first reporting using online platforms to break news, promoting your work with social media and telling stories in alternative forms is essential. La Crosse is Wisconsin’s largest city on the Mississippi River. Our area is blessed with outdoor recreational opportunities and a vibrant arts scene. Previous reporting experience is preferred, but outstanding college graduates are welcome to apply. The Tribune is a Lee Enterprises paper and offers competitive salary and benefits. This journalist will be required to work afternoons and evenings. It’s also essential the journalist provide their own transportation and have a good driving record. Please complete our online application at www.washtodaypub.com/careers Website. Applications should include a resume, cover letter and 3-5 clips of your work. Equal Opportunity Employer (EEO).

A: A spreadsheet of all Wisconsin soldiers and their locations will be released with the model tab materials. This information also can be accessed by using the Advanced Search option made available through the VVMF’s Virtual Wall of Faces.

Q: Where did the names and photos of the soldiers come from?

A: Information about the service members was provided to the VVMF by the Department of Defense. The photos for the project were provided by the VVMF Faces project in good faith by various volunteer sources, including family members, service members, veterans, teachers, WNA member newspapers and the public.

Q: Will copyright releases be available?

A: Yes. The copyrights of photos and editorial copy created by the VNA, Andrew Johnson, Dodge County Pion- ier, Jessica McShane and the VVMF will be provided.

Q: Why is AFPS Gerald L. Kuhlman, LLC, succeeded by the VVA?

A: When photos were being prepared for this section, it was discovered that the photo for Kuhlman was incorrect and still missing. This photo has since been located and will be included with the final model tab.
