journalism and public relations.

After completing college, she worked for radio stations in Fort Atkinson doing news and music shows on-air for WFAW, Kook 106.5 and 107.3. She has also worked as a radio DJ at Magic 98 in Madison. Prior to working at the Leader, she was the education reporter for the Watertown Daily Times.

She has been the recipient of several Wisconsin Newspaper Association awards including one first place award for feature writing about her and her little through the Big Brothers Big Sisters organization, last year.

Weihert says she is excited to be telling stories about her hometown.

“I love Lake Mills. It’s great to be back home telling stories and reporting news where I grew up.”

Weihert lives in rural Watertown with her husband Andrew and sons Logan, 3, and Levi, 1.
